MODERN SLAVERY RISKS

Ergotron is not aware of any situations in which modern slavery exists within its own operations, or in the operations of its direct Suppliers. As such, and in light of the actions described below, Ergotron believes the risk of modern slavery is low in its operations and those of its direct Suppliers.

ACTIONS TAKEN TO ADDRESS MODERN SLAVERY RISKS

- Policies: Our policies, including this Modern Slavery Statement, and our Human Rights Statement, Code of Business Conduct and Ethics and Supplier Code of Conduct policies reflect our commitment to respecting human rights and generally acting ethically and with integrity in all our business relationships, compliant with all relevant laws and regulations including with respect to human trafficking and modern slavery. Ergotron’s standard contractual terms require that Suppliers comply with all Ergotron policies, as well as all applicable laws and regulations, including those relating to human trafficking and slavery. In addition, Ergotron audits its suppliers to ensure compliance with our policies.
- Questions and Reporting: We encourage all stakeholders, suppliers and employees to report any concerns related to the Company’s compliance with this Statement. Ergotron maintains an intranet link to enable its employees and internet site (www.melrose.ethicspoint.com) for its Suppliers and stakeholders to report violations of Ergotron policies, or any unethical or illegal conduct that has been observed, without fear of retaliation. Reports made through any of the foregoing channels will be thoroughly investigated and addressed appropriately. Ergotron encourages all its employees, workers, customers, Suppliers, and other stakeholders to report any concerns and raise any questions they may have related to Ergotron's direct activities, or the Suppliers. This includes any circumstances that may give rise to an enhanced risk of modern slavery or human trafficking.

- Supplier Code of Conduct: Ergotron's Supplier Code of Conduct covers suppliers, vendors, contractors, consultants, agents and other providers of goods and services who do, or seek to do, business with Ergotron worldwide (collectively known as "Suppliers"). This Supplier Code of Conduct sets forth the business conduct standards to which Ergotron expects its Suppliers to adhere. Through this Code, Ergotron expects its Suppliers to conduct all their business transactions in a manner that respects human rights, and in compliance with all applicable laws. Each of our direct Suppliers has its own supply chain and we recognize that each level of the chain is responsible for ensuring compliance with all applicable laws and regulations.
- Supplier Audits: Ergotron recently implemented a robust supplier selection and administration process, including a supplier registration protocol that requires Suppliers to agree to comply with the Supplier Code of Conduct. Ergotron visits certain supplier sites and, upon discovery of any evidence of human trafficking or modern slavery, reserves the right to take remedial actions. Ergotron does not otherwise conduct audits or verification of its Suppliers to evaluate and address the risk of trafficking and modern slavery.
- Certification: The Supplier Code of Conduct requires that all Suppliers only provide to Ergotron products produced where: (i) child, forced, bonded, prison, or indentured labor has not been used; (ii) workers have maintained control over their identity documents; and (iii) workers have been given rest days and the working hours are consistent with local regulations and not excessive.
- Investigations/Due Diligence: Operations and Legal are responsible for investigations and due diligence in relation to known or suspected instances of modern slavery and human trafficking. As stated in our Supplier Code of Conduct, Ergotron reserves the right to monitor and conduct audits of its direct Suppliers, with whom it has contractual relationships. Ergotron also reserves the right to terminate relationships with those direct Suppliers who engage in modern slavery or human trafficking or are otherwise in violation of the Supplier Code of Conduct.
- Ergotron as an Employer: Ergotron's employees are bound by a company-wide Code of Business Conduct and Ethics (the "Employee Code"), which requires employees to report all legal, ethical, and policy violations, either internally or through a variety of anonymous resources. The goal of the Employee Code is to achieve a supportive, professional, and respectful work environment. Among other things, it addresses such topics as equal opportunity, non-discrimination, and the importance of a safe, healthy, and harassment-free workplace. The Employee Code also requires that employees obey all laws, which include laws against modern slavery and human trafficking.
- Training: Ergotron's employees are required to take annual trainings on, and to certify adherence to, the Employee Code. In addition, Ergotron provides those employees and managers who have direct responsibility for supply chain management with additional training on human trafficking and modern slavery.
